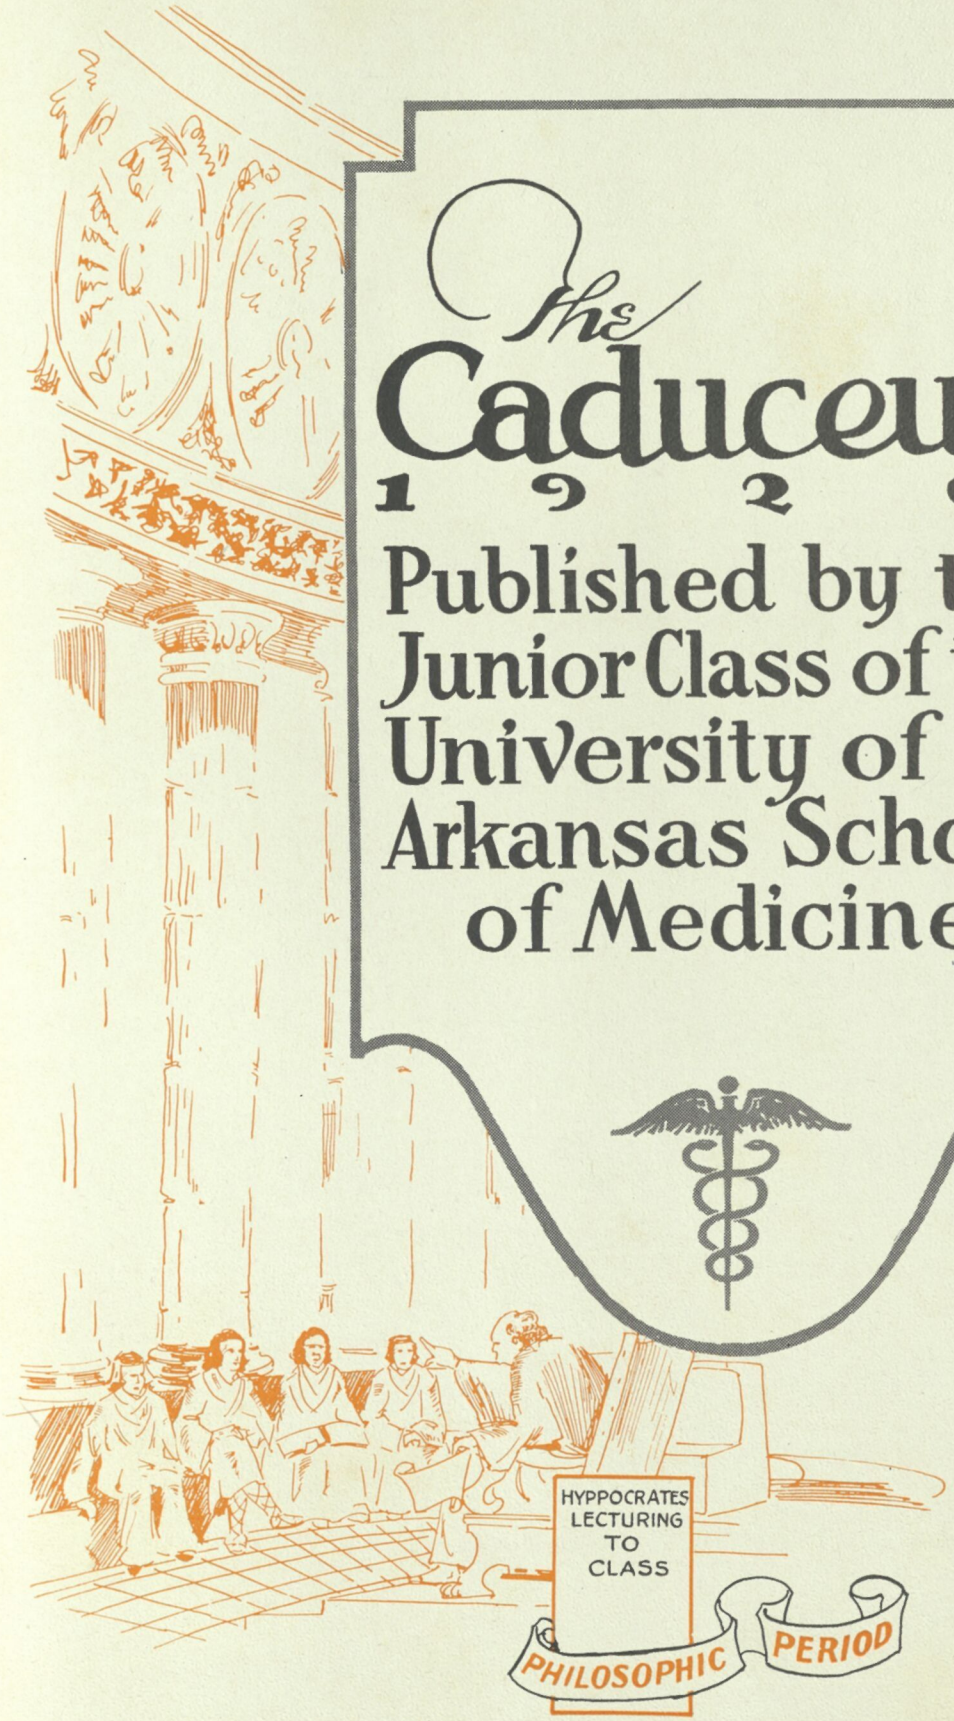
The Caduceus

1926

Published by the Junior Class of the University of Arkansas School of Medicine



Foreword

*"He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has filled his niche and accomplished his task; who has left the world better than he found it, whether by an improved poppy, a perfect poem or a rescued soul; who has never lacked appreciation of earthly beauty or failed to express it; who has looked for the best in others and given the best he had; whose life was an inspiration; whose memory is a benediction."

That each Senior attain to success is our wish .....

EPOCHAL MEDICINE

The Seven Ages of Medicine

The divine art, Gift of God, for the Sacred books of all religion impart fragments of inspirational knowledge for the healing of man; thus, as far back as the faintest dawn of history have the inspired ones handed down by tradition and writings, precepts and rules, for the practice of medicine. For there are Seven Epochs of Medicine, and the evolvement of these periods is almost as wonderful as the Seven Periods of Creation.

EPOCH ONE, SACRED

Moses, the great law giver of the Chosen People, whose youth had been spent in that classic land of Egypt, had obtained all the knowledge of that Ancient Priesthood: Moses, the Heirophant, led a nation out of bondage into a promised land. By direct instruction from God, amid the lightnings of Sinai, he wrote a system of laws (aside from sacred ideas) which have proved to be the most perfect ever devised for the Hygienic betterment of Man.

EPOCH TWO, PHILOSOPHICAL

Next comes before us the master, a Grecian, Hippocrates, "The Great", whose lectures on Medicine as embodied in his works, give us marvelous insight into the symptoms of disease both individual and epidemic. So that he may justly be called the Father of Symptomatology. He emphasized the so called Humeral theory, which has persisted in all schools to this day. Then the sublime nobleness of the Hippocratic Oath; that masterpiece for the guidance and practice of the true Physician, would alone entitle him to eternal remembrance by the Medical Profession.

EPOCH THREE, ANATOMICAL PERIOD

This period, one of immense research, especially in Anatomy and Physiology, easily brings to us the revered name of Galen, the father of Medicine, who gathered to himself all the scattered threads of Medical Knowledge and with these as a frame and his own laborious studies and dissections, wove the ground fabric of scientific medicine. He, although thwarted and persecuted by a hostile world, forbidden to use the human body for purposes of study, amassed an immense quantity of practical knowledge for a grateful posterity. The very frameworks of modern treatment are called Galenical preparations.

EPOCH FOUR, GREEK PERIOD

When the Barbarian hordes from the north swept down upon luxurious Rome, once mistress of the world, her mighty monuments were destroyed, her wonderful libraries and the accumulated knowledge of ages were scattered to the corners of the earth and darkness of the middle ages descended on the world, but in the east in famed Byzantium the Greeks still retained the embers of the divine fire. There arose a leader in Medicine, Alexander of Tralles, who studied and practiced the Art with great success. His works show much originality and thought. He was the first to claim the specific action of Medicines and the theory of selective action, thus laying other stones in the future scientific building of Medicine.

EPOCH FIVE, EARLY SURGERY

A Millennium had passed. Mankind groping in the darkness of prejudice and ignorance, painfully peering here and there, striving almost in vain to glimpse a faint flame of the lamp of science, so long hidden. The world awaiting the one with keener vision and now that one arrives, Ambroise Paré, who may justly be called the Father of Surgery. During the military campaigns of Francis the First, of France, his opportunity arose and studying closely the vast amount of material offered, he advanced Surgery, and the art made enormous progress. He studied Anatomy under the celebrated Sylvius, then wrote a text book on the subject. His most memorable service to medicine was the ligation of arteries, whereby thousands were saved. Thus he too added to the perfection of the noble Art.

EPOCH SIX, REFORM PERIOD

All great world movements strive toward light, knowledge and perfection. These movements are cyclic and necessarily have periods of renaissance or reformation, as religion, art and science. So has Medicine had its periods of reform, rebirth of ideas, theories and practices. In the early nineteenth century such an era came: Untold thousands of human beings had suffered tortures under the keen Scapel of the Surgeon, on the battle field, in the lying in chamber, in the varied accidents of life. The cries and groans of the suffering, spurred on the sympathetic Physician in the search for Nepenthe. In the year Eighteen Hundred and Forty Six, in Boston, a Dentist, W. F. G. Morton used and demonstrated the vapor of Ether in rendering human beings insensible to pain, thus adding one of the greatest boons to humanity and medicine the world has ever known.

EPOCH SEVEN, MODERN PERIOD

As the light of the dawn increases more rapidly, so has the light of knowledge increased as we near the zenith of the sun of perfection. The medical art has increased in exactness until we can see the immediate rise of the splendid sun of exact Science. Theories are disappearing, Empiricism is dying out and the theorems of medicine will be as easily demonstrated as Mathematics. Late in the nineteenth century France brought forth a Biologist, whose discovery, like a flaming sword, destroyed myriads of the unseen foes of humanity. Louis Pasteur with indomitable will, whose watchword was "Toil", announced to a wondering world the infectious cause of disease by Bacteria. The keynote of modern medicine is prevention and this article can be closed in no more appropriate words than those of Pasteur himself.

"Two opposing laws seem to me to be in contest, the one, a law of blood and death, opening out each day new modes of destruction.——The other a law of peace, work and health, whose only aim is to deliver man from the calamities which beset him. The law, of which we are the instruments, strives ever through the carnage to cure all wounds.———Treatment by antiseptic methods and prevention may preserve the lives of thousands.——But of this we may be sure that Science in obeying the law of humanity will always strive to enlarge the frontiers of life."

WHO WANTS THIS STENOGRAPHER?

"The stenographer we require," ran the ad, "must be fast, absolutely accurate, and must have human intelligence. If you are not a cracker-jack, don't bother us."

One of the answers wrote that she noticed their requirements and went on:

"Your advertisement appeals to me strongly—stronger than mustard —as I have searched Europe, Airope, Irope and Jacksonville in quest of someone who could use my talents to advantage. When it comes to this chin music proposition, I have never found man, woman, or dictaphone who could get first base on me, either fancy or catch-as-catch-can. I write shorthand so fast that I have to use a specially prepared pencil with a platinum point and a water-cooling attachment, a note pad made of asbestos, ruled with sulphuric acid and stitched with catgut. I run with my cut-out open at all speeds, and am in fact a guaranteed, double hydraulic welded, drop forged and oil tempered specimen of human lightning on a perfect thirty six frame, ground one-thousandths of an inch.'

"If you would avail yourself of the opportunity of a lifetime, wire me, but unless you are fully prepared to pay the tariff for such service don't bother me, as I am so nervous I can't stand still long enough to have my dresses fitted."

HOW ABOUT IT?

Did you ever hear the story about the student body that always bought their supplies from the men who made their year books possible.

Here's hoping the story can be told to our advertisers in the Caduceus.

Dr. Delaney—Mr. Blank, define stomatitis.
Junior Student—Inflammation of the stomach, Doctor.

(Reminiscent of the classic definition given last year by Hydrous Aluminum Acetate to the affect that Whispering Pectoriloquy is a sound heard over the Pectoral muscle on auscultation.)

Some of us are beginning to wonder how much we can get out of our work, but the majority are still wondering how much of our work we can get out of.

Dr. Murphy (to patient)—"Have you ever had Hallucinations?"

Patient—"Yes. Twice. The first one didn't take, but the second one left a big scar."

She—Why did you let go of the wheel?
He—I just wanted to see if I had a flat tire.
She—Oh! You mean thing.

THIS IS NO JOKE

Like a Rose needs a smeller,
Like the night shirt needs a tail,
Like an old maid needs a feller,
Like a hammer needs a nail,
Like a fruit drink needs its juices,
Like an oyster needs a stew,
Every student needs a Caduceus,
So why the heck don't you?
